I decided to keep my initial card groups largely intact after seeing the suggestions from my two participants. One of the two changed the groups drastically into a sort that I found counter intuitive. Both participants suggested adding cards in the "About Us" section to describe what content will be included in this section. One participant also suggested omitting the "Safety" card from the sort, citing the fact that it does not really fit with the rest of the content. He also suggested consolidating the "Cooking/Prep" group into the "Hunting"/"Fishing" groups. I decided not to implement that suggestion so that users can easily and quickly access recipes without searching through the unrelated content. I believe these groupings will allow users to reference information in an intuitive way.
